

James Heney, who occupied the subordinate position of "helper" at the Carson Mint, is now in the State Prison for robbing the Government, and Barney Brule is behind the bars for bribing witnesses, who were supposed to know something about the mint robbery that would incriminate Heney and others, to keep out of the way.

These are small fish, however, not being more than mere minnows in a pool in which there are large fish that are beyond doubt more responsible for the shortage in the mint and the reprehensible methods used to prevent a conviction of those responsible for it, than those now in jail.

Intelligent men who have worked in the mint, say it is impossible for a helper in a department to steal any appreciable amount of bullion or coin without the knowledge of the head of the department. That being the fact there must have been collusion between Heney and others. He could not have taken the $22,000 in gold which he had melted at the Reno Reduction Works without the knowledge of others. That is proved by the "spurious melt" which is shown to be worth $1,900, when it should be worth over $20,000. That melt could not have been made by Helper Heney, who is not a practical metallurgist, but it was evidently made by persons who wanted to conceal the shortage. These persons were doubtless the partners to whom Heney referred, and the Government ought to be able to ascertain who they are and send them to keep him company.

Again, as the Silver State remarks, the Government officials cannot think that Brule, a deputy constable at Carson, paid Langevin $100 out of his own pocket to keep out of the way during the Heney trial. Brule is but a small fish in the great pool of corruption which the mint trials has disclosed. He had no particular interest in keeping witnesses for the prosecution out of the way. He had not been employed in the mint, was not even suspected of being implicated in the steal, and it is not to be supposed that he paid $400 of his own money to Langevin to secrete himself during the progress of the Heney trial.

The people are not satisfied with the conviction of Heney and Brule, and the Government should not be. There are much bigger fish than either, who are more culpable. Heney admitted when he took the gold to the Reno Reduction Works that he had three partners in the "mine" and the Government ought to be able to ascertain who they are. Brule, no doubt, was hired by those partners or some person acting in their behalf, to hire Langevin to send his son to Canada and to keep out of the way himself, and the authorities, with the whole power of the Government at their back, ought to be able to establish the guilt of those partners and their agents as clearly as they have that of Heney and Brule.

REPUBLICANS IN ACCORD WITH CLEVELAND.

President Cleveland in his annual message to Congress suggested the retirement of greenbacks. Senator Sherman and some other Republicans pretended to be opposed to Mr. Cleveland's suggestion, but the bond bill reported to the House by Mr. Dingley was suspected of containing a clause that could be construed as favoring the idea. The bill was therefore amended, but the amendment did not satisfy 136 members of the House who recorded their votes against it, but 170 votes were recorded in its favor and it passed.

In the Senate Mr. Sherman, who pretended to be opposed to the retirement of greenbacks, introduced the following resolution, which is in accord with the President's suggestion:

Resolved, That by injurious legislation by the Fifty-third Congress the revenues of the Government were reduced below the necessary expenditures and the fund created by law for the redemption of United States notes has been invaded to supply such deficiency.

Resolved, That such misapplication of the redemption fund is of doubtful legality and greatly injurious to the public credit, and should be prevented by restoring said fund to a sum of not less than $100,000,000 in gold coin or bullion, to be paid out only in redemption of United States notes and Treasury notes, and such notes when redeemed to be reissued only in exchange for gold coin or bullion.

The residence of John H. Hibbard at Columbus, Ohio, caught fire yesterday morning, and Mrs. Hibbard and two children, and two relatives from Barnesville, Ohio, who were there on a visit, were suffocated. Four sons, all under 15 years, and a colored servant escaped by jumping from second-story windows.

A boiler in the basement of the building, occupied by the Anchor Peanut Company and Excelsior Fireworks Company, exploded yesterday afternoon with terrific force, shattering the building and burying several persons in the ruins. The fire department was called out to subdue the fire caused by the explosion.

The Cuban and Spanish Troops Meet. HAVANA, January 2.—An engagement between Spanish troops and insurgents has taken place at El Estante, south of Alfonso XII and not far from the frontier of the provinces of Havana. An official announcement says that the troops captured the insurgent's position, but the loss to the enemy is not known. It is admitted that two Spanish officers and four soldiers were killed and nineteen wounded. The insurgents, following the usual tactics, did not attempt a decisive engagement, but after a skirmish proceeded westward, devastating the country. The authorities here, in announcing this skirmish, added the significant statement that the troops "were moved closer to the province of Havana," which would indicate that the Spanish forces are once more in retreat. Later in the day it was announced here that further fighting between the Spaniards and Cubans was taking place in the vicinity of El Estante, which leads people here to believe that the insurgents have been in pursuit of the Spanish troops in that vicinity.

The latter were commanded by Colonel Galvis, who was also in command of the troops first engaged in the vicinity of El Estante, which seems to be a confirmation of the supposition that the Spaniards were worsted and that the Cubans are making for the frontier of the Province of Havana.

The Venezuela Commission.

WASHINGTON, January 2.—It was authoritatively stated in behalf of the Administration that the Venezuelan Commission will be absolute master of its own procedure, fixing the time and place of its meetings and determining for itself whether or not it shall visit foreign countries, what class of evidence may be taken into consideration and how the interested governments may be represented before the tribunal.

This independence of action is deemed necessary to secure to the Commission's findings that degree of weight and respect among other nations that can be attained only through knowledge that the body is free from any restraint or obligation to the United States Government. Our Government will occupy the status of an exact neutral in the proceedings.

Sold His Wife Cheap.

Sr. Louis, Jan. 2.—Jake Gregory, an ignorant old negro, occupying a dilapidated cabin near Waverly, recently traded off his wife to another negro for an 8-year-old male, a pointer dog and $5. The transfer was effected with the woman's full consent and her belongings were hauled to her new abode by the aforesaid male.

AT THE COURTHOUSE.
Congressman Newlands Addresses
Large and Representative Audience
Synopsis of His Remarks.

The address of Mr. Newlands at the Courthouse last evening was listened to by many ladies and gentlemen as could find seats and standing room. Mr. E. D. Kelly called the meeting to order shortly before 8 o'clock and nominated Hon. H. H. Beck for Chairman. Hon. T. V. Julian was elected Secretary. Mr. Beck in a fewlections remarked the object of the meeting and introduced Congressman Newlands.

Mr. Newlands began by stating that he had hoped to spend the Fall in Nevada, but was prevented by the long continued illness of his daughter.

"Contrary to the usual custom," said the Speaker, "Congress has been in session during the holidays by reason of the two measures brought forward by the Republican Congress in response to Cleveland's war message and proclamation of national insolvency; the Tariff bill, with its provision placing a duty upon wool, which I voted for, and the Bond bill, endorsing Cleveland's policy of issuing bonds in time of peace, which my vote is recorded against."

Mr. Newlands then explained the bimetallic movement in the United States; the organization of the Bimetallic party last year and the nomination of J. C. Sibley for President. He declared that the gold men spent thousands of dollars in countering the sudden and general awakening all over the country at that time in favor of silver. The Democratic leaders became frightened, fearing that the sentiment for independent political action would disrupt the Democratic party. To divert the tread of public sentiment, so as to keep it within the Democratic ranks in Illinois, Hendrickson issued a call for a Democratic Silver Convention, and led the people of his State, as well as those of many other States, to believe that that party intended to champion free coinage.

The Memphis Convention, over which Senator Harris presided, was a movement of a similar kind, got up solely for the purpose of forestalling the Southern independent sentiment and preventing the Southern Democratic from joining any other political organization by apparently committing the Democratic party to free coinage.

The gold men meantime organized and held the first Memphis convention at which thousands of dollars were spent in giving that congress the appearance of a spontaneous movement of the South. At this time a phenomenon occurred which seemed to disprove the bimetallic theory, and in the South had a powerful influence in wrecking confidence in silver. Cotton, in spite of the continued decline in silver, rose in price. This was due to the fact that the world's product had fallen off nearly 40 per cent. The sound money press, however, used a powerful argument to discredit the contention that the price of silver regulated that of cotton.

The business of the country revived somewhat at the time, also caused perhaps by the vast bicycle demand and the construction of immense iron buildings in the Eastern cities.

It was during this temporary business revival, Mr. Newlands declared, that he was interviewed by a reporter of a New York paper who distorted and changed what he had said making it appear that he was disheartened over the outlook. In substance he had stated in the interview that he believed the people of the country could be educated only through hard times and suffering to the appreciating of the spoiling results of the gold standard.

With regard to the political future Mr. Newlands thought that efforts to unite the silver men of the country into one party would be fruitless until after the Republican and Democratic National Conventions had been held, when the faith of those who now thought that the party of their affiliation would do something for silver would be rewarded or the delusion effectively dispelled. Then, when the old parties, as he believed had followed the tenets of their leaders and declared for gold the friends of silver might be brought together in a new party under whatever name, it mattered not.

The Speaker declared that much as he deplored a prospective war with England over the Venezuelan boundary, war, with all its dread consequences of death and destruction of property, it was infinitely better than the horrors of long continued industrial depression. As for himself he thought that, whether right or wrong the causes bringing it about, was to be chosen as a humanitarian election, rather than continuance, under present conditions of virtual enslavement to the English bondholders.

The speaker explained the Oriental phase of the silver question in relation to the awakening manufacturing industries of Japan, China and India, and declared that by reason of the difference in the rate of exchange, on account of their money being silver, it protected them at home from competition with the manufactured articles of other countries and enabled them on the other hand to compete in the markets of the world with their products at a price so low that in a short time a tariff wall, if not supplemented by bimetalism, could not be built high enough to prevent them from ruining the manufacturing industries of all gold standard countries.

The Eastern manufacturers are just beginning to realize now, as Japanese

LOCAL AND GENERAL NEWS.

News From Here There and Everywhere.

The ore taken from the great Amacanda copper mine averaged for the first half of the present year 6.75 copper, 4.5 ounces of silver and also produced 1,200 ounces of gold during the same period.

The Belmont Courier says: Superintendent Hanchett writes that the work of development will be prosecuted uninterruptedly henceforward in the Silver Peak gold mine. This property is looking exceeding well.

Bob Stewart, who brought a carload of ore to Hawthorne, informs the Bulletin that the Gem mine is looking better than ever. They are taking good ore out of the main ledge. Four men are working in the mine.

Sales of land in the State Land Office for the month of December, 1895, aggregate 17,497.87 acres—the largest sales for any month during the past three years. This shows that people have great faith in the future of Nevada.

Mrs. K. A. Simpson of Austin gave birth to a daughter on Christmas day, and as far as heard from is the only woman in Nevada that won a Chronicle cup. There were several births in Washoe county the day before and the day after Christmas, but none within the prescribed time, so far as known.

The Appeal says: News reached Carson of a fresh strike at Pine Nut bigger than ever before. Men are flocking in from Genoa and Gardnerville with arms, and trouble was expected when the clock struck midnight for January 1, 1896. Word came into Carson yesterday to send out more arms and ammunition, and quite a lot of these sort of supplies went to the front last night.

The Hawthorne Bulletin believes that the Silver Peak mines are capable of supporting a population of 10,000 people, and if work is pursued they will prove to contain the greatest deposit of gold ever found on the coast. We also believe that when the mine is opened the present 30-stamp mill will prove a toy, and that 300 stamps will be required to do justice to the product of the mine.

The band parade on New Year's day, a horse driven by Mr. Allen took flight at the music as the band marched down Commercial Row and ran away. In turning into Sierra street the rig collided with a buggy in which Mrs. Fred White and her mother, Mrs. Steele, were sitting. The buggy was badly damaged and Mr. and Mrs. Allen were thrown out of their cart. Mrs. Allen was considerably injured and at first it was thought she was seriously hurt. Mrs. White and Mrs. Steele escaped injury. Allen's horse broke away from the cart and continued down Sierra to Second street and came very near running over Mrs. J. M. McCormack and little child.

The band boys regret the accident as much as anyone, but they took the precaution to announce the parade and the hour in the papers with a view that such accidents would be avoided. Allen was driving up Commercial Row and had plenty of time to turn down Virginia street and thus get away from the band, but instead of this drove up the street and endeavored to drive by it. His horse became uncontrollable and the accident resulted. No blame can be attached to the band.

Injured by the Sheep License.

Mason Valley people suffer by reason of the act of the Legislature requiring sheep owners who are not the owners or holders of one acre of land for every two sheep, to pay license. Mr. McLeod says heretofore from 50,000 to 75,000 head of sheep from California wintered in Mason Valley and vicinity. The ranchers sold their hay at a fair price to the owners of those sheep. They do not weaken by their action, but by giving tone to stomach and bowels, greatly invigorate the system. Regular size 25¢ per box. Sold by S. J. Hodgkinson. Druggist.

The Band Parade

As per announcement, Hastings' and Hoskins' combined bands gave a street parade on New Year's day. Nearly thirty instrumentalists were in the band and the boys played with us much energy as if they were being paid for the service. It was estimated that over 1,500 people were on the street to witness the parade and listen to the music, and it was demonstrated beyond any question of a doubt that an open air concert at some place on the main street would be a drawing card, yet if the boys wanted to raise $25 for a band stand or purchase some music it would be considered an extravagance that couldn't be considered a moment.

Over twenty towns in California not only furnish a music stand for open air concerts, but set that a reasonable amount of money is paid for the service.

Board of Health Sanitarium.

May Pierson, a young lady from Virginia City, has won Dr. Packard, her physician, says is a well defined case of varicella, or chickenpox. The young lady was attending the State University and in Student Smith's class. She went home to spend the holidays and the disease developed in about a week after she left the University.

Cadet Richard of Carson, who roomed in the dormitory at the State University, is also reported ill at his home with chickenpox.

A Cowardly Assault.

John Piper, the veteran proprietor of the Opera House, was assaulted in a cowardly fashion yesterday afternoon. He was expelling three or four young toughs from the Opera House when one of them struck him on the back of the head from behind and knocked him down. Before he could regain his feet or call for aid his assailant and the others were gone. The toughs were trying to steal into the matinee. They should all be arrested and prosecuted and the one who assaulted Mr. Piper be given six months.—Chronicle.

Disappointments of an M. P.

One of the great disappointments in the life of an M. P. is that, though sessions come and sessions go, his little pet scheme of legislation, which he hoped to be able to place on the statute book, never advanced beyond the initiatory stage of first reading. Another cruel disappointment is that, after devoting days and nights to taxing his brain for antitheses, epigrams and other flowers of rhetoric in his speech in a great debate, he patiently sits night after night during the time allotted for the debate, on the point to "catch the speaker's eye," but fails to fix the attention of that wandering orb, while he hears his arguments and his illustrations used by other men who have probably gone to the same source for them, until at last the end comes without an opportunity having been given him to relieve his mind of the weighty unspoken speech which oppresses it. Then his constituents complain that he is a useless "silent voter" if they do not see his name in the newspaper reports. They convince him he is neglecting his duty, what consultation is it to him to think of the old saying that "they are the voice of parliament who use the greatest silence," or of the opinion of the party leaders—especially the leaders of the party in office—that he is the most useful of members who never takes part in the debates, but is ever at hand to record his vote when the division bells ring out their alarm?—Chambers' Journal.

If we can advance propositions both true and new, these are our own by right of discovery, and if we can repeat what is old more briefly and brightly than others this also becomes our own by right of conquest.—Colton.

A little wit and a great deal of ill nature will furnish a man for satire, but the greatest instance and value of wit is to command well.—Tillotson.

When the Name is Lorraine.

"Why," asked Mr. Ashbury last, "why is the letter 'L' like a wedge?"

No one noticed him, but he went on.

Piano Recital.

The term "recital" was used for the first time in announcing Liszt's first forte performances at the Old Elsinore Square rooms. The pianist indeed in one of his letters writes, "Le recital, c'est moi!"—Academy.

For Owners Who Drive.

"You can drive to the water," said the horse, bitterly to the woman in the buggy. "Let you can't make me drink—take you let down my check-rein."—Chicago Tribune.

There never was any party, faction, sect or cabal whatever in which the most ignorant were not the most violent, for a bison is a buster animal than a bison in a crowd.
